DOWN AT THE DEPOT

Precious Memories

Sometimes the things you find in the museum aren't things. Most recently, some old friendships and old memories were found on a Saturday afternoon down at the depot. Three precious ladies had made their plans to meet up at the museum, just prior to the annual Drumright High School Alumni Banquet held May 25th. Out came the yearbooks, scrapbooks and most especially, the stories!

These friends are Evadee Tucker Thomas, Class of 1947, Alberta Ferguson Bonebrake, Class of 1948 and June Ferguson Fritts, Class of 1951. Evadee lives in Yukon, Oklahoma and comes back to Drumright whenever she can. Alberta lives in Collinsville and comes to Drumright often to visit her sister,

June, who lives just west of Drumright.

These three friends were all born and raised in Drumright in the 1930s and 1940s. They remembered when the high school band traveled to Mexico and performed in 1946. They remembered being DHS Pepperettes, cheering on the athletic teams. They remembered the best-looking boys and more importantly, who kissed them first!

They remembered the threats of storms and tornadoes in Drumright. According to Evadee, "Mama kept lanterns, cots and fruit down in the cellar, so we had a grand time whenever it stormed." And when it came to dating boys, here is the best comment ever, "If you lived half your life in a storm cellar in Oklahoma and the other half at the Baptist Church, you'd be naïve too!"

The Drumright Historical Society Museum was happy to host this reunion of old friends and we wish all three ladies continued good health and much happiness!

Landmark Buildings Demolished

Recent storms and high winds in Drumright ripped off the roof of two landmark buildings on Broadway, the old Way Motor Company, and the Continental Supply Company. These buildings have been vacant for decades and were used only for storage. There was a mural of oil derricks, a pond and trees painted on the exterior west wall of the Way Motor Company. It was painted by artist William Volok. The Way Motor Company was demolished first, and I believe it to be the oldest of the two buildings. It held the local Chevrolet dealership owned by Fred Way for many years. Fred Way was a leading Drumright citizen, in fact, Way Park on Tiger Hill was named in his honor. It is sad to see these buildings and a mural gone from our community.

Ode to June 8th, 1974

"I wrote this today on the 50th anniversary of the tornado that hit our town when I was 12. Sung to the tune of Ode to Billie Joe. Now, if we can get Gene or Randy Collier to sing it?" - Lynn Strickland

It was the 8th of June, a yellow, hazy, dusty Drumright day
We were out ridin' horses, not knowin' a twister was on it's way
Bout five PM we stopped and drove up to Litchfield Hill to see
Then mama hollered from the car door, "Ya'll, I think that it's time to flee!"
We just made it to the cellar at the end of our driveway
The day that Drumright, Oklahoma was very nearly blown away
And mama said to papa, " I think I'd better head on into town."
There'll be lots of people injured 'n not enough nurses to go around
She took Grandma and big sister, we didn't see them for three whole days
The stories they told of the rescue will never go away
Not everyone who was there was able to walk away
The day that Drumright, Oklahoma was very nearly blown away
I heard the roof blew off the nursing home at the edge of town
And a man pulled from the rubble was clutching his Bible when he was found
So many were hurt that they set a triage up at Edison school
To sort the livin' from the dyin', I know, it seems so cruel.
While brave men and women did jobs we never can repay
The day that Drumright, Oklahoma was very nearly blown away
On that day people lost homes, possessions, even, their lives
Their legacy lives on through those of us who have survived
We will never forget that day whenever we hear the sirens sound
We'll tell our stories to the young ones every time we head underground
Of the devastation, and the bravery, and don't forget to pray
On that day when Drumright, Oklahoma was very nearly blown away
Now years have come and gone since that storm ripped through our town
We've fought fire and ice but nothin' really seems to keep us down
There was a virus goin' round, people caught it, some would succumb
But here in Drumright Town we all know how to overcome.

Me, I spend a lot of time online lookin' at pictures from that day
The day that Drumright, Oklahoma was very nearly blown away
